Youth walks away from 100 mph pursuit crash

A 15-year-old Montclair youth led Upland and Pomona police on a 100mph freeway chase before his car crashed off San Bernardino Freeway in Via Verde late Friday night.

Despite a tumble down a 30-foot embankment, the youth was pulled out of the overturned car without an Pomona Police Officer Richard Tefank, whose police car was nearly sideswiped during the chase, said the youth complained afterwards that he had just had a fight with his girlfriend.

The pursuit began in Upland and headed west on San Bernardino Freeway into Pomona, where the Upland police dropped off and Pomona officers took over.

After careening down the freeway embankment just east of the Via Verde overpass, the car plowed through the freeway fence.

Carter owes nothing on $55,000

By FRANK CORMIER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter announced Friday he owes no federal taxes on a 1976 gross income of $55,000 but that he is making a voluntary $6,000 payment "because of my strong feeling that a person should pay some tax on his income.'

Carter made public copies of a joint tax return filed with his wife, Rosalynn, that pinpointed two major reasons why the couple did not owe Uncle Sam a cent:

The family peanut business fell on hard times last year. The President's share of partnership profits was reduced to $46,555, down from $119,244 a year earlier.

-The President invested $208,649 last year as his share of the cost of a new peanut storage warehouse and additional processing equipment.

This yielded him a potential investment tax credit of $20,864, which he could deduct directly from any taxes owed. Without the credit, the Carters would have owed taxes of $11,675. The tax credit eliminated the couple's tax liability.

Since the Carters paid quarterly estimated taxes of $26,589 for 1976, they are owed a refund of the whole amount. Such estimated taxes are prepaid four times a year by some

However, Carter wrote Friday to the Atlanta district director of the Internal Revenue Service, saving:

Because of my strong feeling that a person should pay some tax on his income, I ask that you accept the amount of $6,000, which is approximately 15 of our net taxable income for 1976, as a payment of income tax for 1976 and refund to us only the balance of the prepaid 1976 income tax remaining to our credit after deducting the amount of $6,000."

Responding to questions, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter adopted the 15 per cent figure because that is the amount of minimum tax applicable by law to certain types of income, such as long-term capital gains. The minimum tax did not apply to the Carters' situation, however.

An IRS spokesman said that in 1974 a taxpayer making $50,000 to $100,000 in adjusted gross income paid an average of 25 per cent of that income in federal taxes.

Powell was asked what the President would do should the IRS decline to keep the $6,000. Powell declared: 'He's determined to pay this money and he doesn't intend to lose.

When a newsman asked if the $6,000 could be regarded as "conscience money," The spokesman replied, "No, I don't think so."

2-county dragnet leads to arrest

A valley-wide police search for the rapist-slaver of a Montclair teenager paid off Friday evening with the arrest of a suspect in Ontario.

Police arrested the man, identified as Clarence L. Hill, 27, shortly after 6 p.m. at the home of an acquaintance at 130 Acacia St.

Ontario and Montclair police joined in the arrest, which was completed without resistance, said of-

Hill was taken to the Montclair police station where investigators were continuing to question him late Friday night.

Montclair Police Chief Ray McLean said contact from an informant helped lead to the arrest. He cautioned, however, that Hill is a suspect only.

Hill's arrest culminated an intensive day's investigation following the brutal early-morning rape and slaying of Audry Townsend, 15, the stabbing of her mother, Pauline Munro, 46, and the rape of a second 15-yearold at the Appollo Arms apartments, 10342 Ramona Ave.

The slaying occurred just after 2 a.m. Friday morning when a man forced his way into Mrs. Munro's apartment, forced the two 15-yearolds into a bedroom, raped each of them twice and then attacked the women with a knife taken from the apartment's kitchen.

Miss Townsend was stabbed repeatedly and died at the scene. Mrs. Munro also suffered multiple wounds and was said to be in stable condition Friday night at Doctor's Hospital in Montclair.

The second 15-year-old, who has not been identified by authorities, was also stabbed but was released from the hospital following treat-

Friday morning police combed the areas surrounding the apartment complex, hoping to find some physical evidence that might have been left by the slayer. As police agencies on both sides of the county line began checking potential sex offender suspects, Montclair detectives issued an appeal for any information that might help the investigation. It was not immediately known whether that appeal led to the contact by an informant, but by 4 p.m., said officers, the effort to apprehend Hill in Ontario was underway.

Police were unsure exactly where Hill lives, stating that he has resided at several locations in Ontario and Pomona in the past.

Hill was said to have a previous criminal record, although no specific details about possible previous offenses were released.

RTD bus fare hike hits Valleyites cent fare for the handicapped and for

PB Staff Writer

Nearly 8,500 bus riders on the Los Angeles County side of the valley will pay more for their transportation July 1 to help subsidize the skyrocketing costs of running the Southern California Rapid Transit

Some fares will go up 50 per cent. but in one case - between Pasadena and Pomona - the rate will drop from 70 to 40 cents.

The RTD is raising fares and cutting back services to balance a budget that is nearly $7.5 million in the hole. Local service, which RTD officials claim 90 per cent of the patrons use, will go from 35 cents to 40 cents freeways.

However, express routes will be hit hard. The Pomona to Los Angeles run on Bus 480 will go from 80 cents to $1.20. The park-and-ride from the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds to downtown Los Angeles will go from $1 to $1.40. And the 11/2-hour route from Pomona to San Bernardino, which takes in Montclair and Ontario International airport, will be raised from $1.10 to $1.35.

The RTD *expects to get a $5.2 million subsidy from the county Board of Supervisors which will partly make up the deficit. However, a spokesman said the size of the subsidy will not effect the increases in the fare structure.

One of the local cuts is the curtailment of the service on the bus that operates between Diamond Bar and Los Angeles. Line 482 will run every hour at night instead of every half

The new rate structure is based on a change that eliminates zones but imposes a surcharge on riders for length of travel on the freeways.

Thus all local buses will operate on a one-zone system that costs 40 cents regardless of distance. But if the bus uses a freeway, passengers will be socked with surcharges that will run a maximum of 40 cents more per ride than the present charges.

Java consumption drop forces massive layoff

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) - A General Foods Corp. coffee plant here will lay off one-fourth of its work force next week because of slumping demand for the beverage, it was announced Friday.

General Foods, the nation's largest coffee roaster, said Thursday that the decline in consumption has forced it to predict that profits in the current quarter won't exceed the record $52.8 million reported a year

Canadian gas price hike

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) - The Canadian government has announced it will raise the price of natural gas exported to the United States by 34 cents per thousand cubic feet starting Sept. 23.

The boost, part of a fuel price package announced Thursday, will bring the gas price per thousand cubic feet to $2.28 in Canadian dollars, which are worth 94.37 U.S. cents.

The council's Police, Fire and Civil Defense Committe made the order Tuesday after the Coalition Against Police Abuse, a citizens' group, said a police study on shootings involving officers was "a white-wash.

Capture teenage pirates

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A 14-year-old boy and his girlfriend who stole a 51-foot vacht and kept a sheriff's SWAT team at bay for three hours of negotiations surrendered today about a mile offshore, deputies said.

The North Hollywood boy and the 15-year-old girl had apparently run away from home with ideas of escaping to the high seas after the lad had a fight with his father, said Deputy Marvin Cavanaugh. The youths were both booked for investigation of grand theft at the Lennox sheriff's station. Cavanaugh said.

The youths remembered that a former employer of the boy's father owned the 51-foot Isis, berthed at Marina del Rev. and drove to the vacht. The boat is owned by Robert Miller of Pasadena. The children were not identified because of their age.

The Coast Guard spotted the boat and did a rountine ownership check after noticing its unusual mooring site a mile off the Los Angeles Harbor breakwater.

The owner confirmed the boat had been stolen but also warned the Coast Guard that the Isis had a high-powered rifle and ammunition aboard.

It was not know if the youth was ever aware of the gun, but the Coast Guard didn't want to take a chance after he announced that he would not leave the boat and would not let them aboard. They backed off.

A SWAT team finally talked the youths into surrendering about 4 a.m. and the boat was returned to Marina del Wiggins pleads guilty in L.A.

Donald G. Wiggins, the Pomona foundry owner suspected of burying several tons of weapons and explosives in Antelope Valley, Ontario and Pomona, pleaded guilty to one count of possession of explosives in Los Angeles Superior Court Friday.

Wiggins, 41, had originally been charged with 12 counts of illegal arms charges stemming from huge caches found by police on several properties he owned in San Bernardino and Los Angeles counties. He recently pleaded guilty to two similar counts in West Valley Superior Court.

As a condition of Friday's case settlement, Wiggins agreed to cooperate with authorities in any continuation of the arms cache probe. Wiggins has repeatedly maintained that a man known as "Jeff Martin" was responsible for the storing of the tons of munitions and investigators have indicated in the past that they are looking for another man in relation to the arms case.

Attorney H. George Taylor said Wiggins will return to court September 30 for sentencing.

L.A. ballerina is big Bolshoi winner

MOSCOW (AP) - Two young American ballerinas have proved themselves among the world's finest dancers, and they say the experience of working on the Bolshoi stage was Camille Izzard of the Maryland Ballet and Yoko Ichino, a free-lance soloist, both 24, won prizes in the Bolshoi's third international ballet contest which ended Friday.

They were among 23 dancers to reach the finals of the competition which began June 13 with 74 contestants. All 15 Russians reached the finals and eight were among the 12 medal winners.

Miss Ichino, born in Los Angeles and now living in New York, was one of four bronze medal winners. She danced four years with the Joffrey Ballet in New York and one year with the Stuttgart Ballet in Germany before setting out on her own as a free-lance guest performer.

'The most important thing is not the competition, or the medals themselves, but the chance to get to know the Soviet school of ballet better," Miss Ichino said.

Although she did not win a medal, the judges awarded Miss Izzard a special "encouragement prize" for her acting skill. 'Dancing on the Bolshoi stage has been just incredible," she said. "It makes me feel special to be dancing there, very honored, very lucky.

The American ballerinas had Sylvester Campbell of the Maryland Ballet as a partner. Although he was not a formal contestant, he was awarded an encouragement prize and received warm applause. The two women talked with a reporter on the competition's last day in the dancers' cafeteria inside the Bolshoi theater. For two weeks, they ate there, shared dressing rooms with French and Italian dancers and worked alongside Bolshoi dancers in daily training.

"We've hardly had time to breathe, we go from classes to the Bolshoi to rehearsal, then home to eat, then to the Bolshoi at night," Miss Izzard said.

"You're up along the bar with Pavlova, Maximova and Vasiliyev," she said. "It's very exciting to mix with them.

Nadezhda Pavlova, Yekaterina Maximova and Vladimir Vasiliyev are among the Bolshoi's stars. Pavlova was herself the grand prize winner of the second international Bolshoi competition four years ago. Miss Ichino said the Russian teachers are "incredible. They don't waste a minute. In one hour they stretch and warm every part of your body." Rehearsals in the West, she said, "are carried on as if people were just bodies. They don't develop the dancer. Here you're able to work out detail, to see how it's done." "The Russians have more thorough training than we have in the States," Miss Izzard said. "They've been groomed since age 7, prepared their whole life to dance on stage.

"And they don't have to pay anything for school, classes, medical treatment, coaching, orchestra, rehearsing, point shoes — we have to pay for each of these," she said.

(However, Russian stars such as Rodolf Nureyev, Mikhail Baryshnikov, Natalia Makarova and Kaleria Fedicheva have left seeking greater political, personal or artistic freedom in the West)

The contestants, from 21 countries, communicated through dancing, the Americans said. 'Dance is the common denominator here, so it really doesn't matter what language you speak," Miss Izzard

Omnitrans will celebrate its first anniversary

PB Staff Writer

Omnitrans, central public transit operator and coordinator for San Bernardino County, will celebrate its first anniversary of operation with increased services and relocation to a new administrative base in the 1977-78 year.

Paul Marsh, general manager of the transit operation serving the East and West valleys of the county and parts of the desert, recently reflected upon the highlights and pitfalls of the first year.

When Omnitrans became a reality July 1, 1976, it was the culmination of more than two years of effort by various political entities and their administrative planners, and the merging of two systems, the county transit operation and San Bernardino Transit Systems. The latter served the six East Valley cities of San Bernardino, Redlands, Loma Linda, Colton, Rialto and Fontana. The county provided the West End transit needs on a contract basis with the cities here.

Omnitrans has come a long way. From a dream, it now has 31 fixed routes, including an intercommunity route from Yucaipa to the Los Angeles County line; dial-a-ride in Ontario and Upland and implementation of this service expected under the Omnitrans umbrella in San Bernardino, Colton and Rialto this year: medical vans for the elderly and handicapped in the West End and San Bernardino urbanized area; approximately 200 employes and 95 buses now with increases planned in the next year of 40 workers and seven mini-buses, including four with hydraulic lifts to accommodate the wheelchair-handicapped.

"Omnitrans' purpose, basically, is to provide an adequate transit service for a regional area. It is an unified system that provides regional service," Marsh said.

The blue, white and gold buses crisscross the county in a 50-mile belt from Calamesa to the Los Angeles County line. The service routes are approximately 15 miles wide, bordered on the north by the San Bernardino Mountains and on the south by the Riverside County

The fares have remained constant thus far, demonstrating the Omnitrans policy of making public transit as accessible as possible, Marsh added. The regular fare is 25 cents, students of any age with identification ride for a dime and the senior citizens and handicapped ride free with the purchase of a special pass.

Marsh, formerly a transit administrator on the East Coast, came to California in November 1974 as general manager of the San Bernardino Transit Systems. Two years later, he and other personnel from the SBTS and county systems made the changeover to Omnitrans.

The major problem in the first year was the flow of federal funds under the Urban Mass Transit Authority (UMTA) allocations. In an attempt to carry on operations without the $1.7 million due Omnitrans from the federal government, the board of directors was forced to seek loans from member agencies' local transit dollars.

"Cash flow has been a critical problem," Marsh said. "The information from Washington is that it is now being processed and finalized and we should be getting it in the near future.'

The cash flow crisis delayed the acquisition of radio equipment needed for two-way communication between buses and the base operation. Another incidental problem, not directly related but also pertaining to federal red tape, involved the slowing down of the maintenance vard construction at Fifth and Muscott streets in San Bernardino because of federal grant processing, clearance procedures and environmental studies.

There have been routine day-today operational problems, Marsh commented, due to the small size of the present facilities at 183 S. G St., San Bernardino.

"But this is something we live with until we get the other operation," Marsh said.

That problem is expected to be remedied with relocation into the new facility to be renovated at Fifth

YTS official receives award

Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles has presented an outstanding service award to Keith Vermillion, superintendent of the Youth Training School in Chino. The Los Angeles City award, presented during a Watts community program June 16, cited Vermillion for the development of a number of new programs at the Youth Authority institution in Chino. A substantial portion of the wards housed at YTS are

The highlights have included the purchase of 19 new buses in the current fiscal year and finalization of massive revisions and additions to augment the service levels for next

Marsh saw this as a "big step in the right direction" and pointed to the program's effectiveness through spiraling passenger counts.

The regional systems three years ago provided service of about 1.3 million passenger rides, then upped that to 3 million the following year. More than 5.5 million rider-ships have been counted this year and 6.3 million are expected for 1977-78.

Projections include the construction of a terminal at the Montclair Plaza to serve as a central point for Omnitrans' local and intercommunity lines and Southern California Rapid Transit District buses; the creation of a new terminal point at Sultana Avenue and D Street in Ontario; the alteration of the intercommunity line to provide service Monday through Saturday to Ontario International Airport; eight-hour Sunday service from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Ontario, Upland, Montclair, Chino, Los Serranos, Fontana and Yucaipa; and the purchase of radio equipment to establish two-way communication.

A public awareness program will be implemented next year with the hiring of a public relations director to stimulate media publicity and promotion of the bus system through community meetings and presenta-

'Open space corridor' recommended

Cable Airport discussion postponed

By GEORGE MacLAREN PB Staff Writer

Recommendations suggested by the West Valley Airport Land Use Commission of San Bernardino County have led the Claremont Planning Commission to defer any discussion on future land uses east of Mills Avenue and south of Base Line Road until July 19.

The land use commission had recommended that an "open space corridor" be provided along an extended center line of Cable Airport's runway. This would extend 5,000 feet into Claremont.

According to the recommendation, the corridor should be about 150 feet wide, all structures be limited to single-story in height, and all utility lines be placed underground.

City Atty. William Bergman informed Claremont officials that in his opinion the land use commission had no jurisdiction in Los Angeles County. But Dewey Cable, who started the airport in 1946, noted the city is in the airport's zone of in-

Paul Cable, also associated with the airport, said he didn't believe the San Bernardino County agency is saying anything "you don't already know. The airport traffic pattern was set back in 1945.

mendations will impact the area too much. "It is not a big thing or that much of a problem," Cable said. Commission chairman John Serpa said that the land use commission's recommendations are not binding, "but they pertain to good planning."

He said he doesn't think the recom-

Bill Wojtkowski of the city planning staff stressed that the city has been forewarned about safety concerns in connection with Cable Air-

The land use commission had recommended that no high intensity use be allowed within the approach surface of the runway. High intensity has been defined as including assembly areas, auditoriums and similar uses, with 80 square feet or less per occupant.

The commission also recommended that the city acquire a noise navigation easement on behalf of Cable Airport, and that a covenant should be included in all new tract restrictions to inform prospective lot purchasers that they are located within the Cable Airport normal traffic pattern.

Wojtkowski told the commission that it may take two or more months to settle some issues relating to the airport, and that the environmental impact report has not been certified for the area between Base Line Road, Foothill Boulevard, Mills Avenue and the county line because the land use commission's recommendations are far-reaching on uses for the Stover family and Biddle properties on Foothill Boulevard.

State prison commitments up 92 per cent

State prison commitments in the Pomona area increased by 92 per cent the first five months of 1977 compared with the same period last year.

This compares with 22.4 per cent for the entire Los Angeles County, reported Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp. Van de Kamp reported 126 felons were sentenced to state prisons by Superior Court judges in Pomona between January and May. This compared to 65 for the first five months of 1976. He gave no explanation for the higher rate in Pomona. Countywide, the number of commitments increased from 1,346 the first five months last year to 1,648 for the same period this year.

Claremont commission denies permit

The Claremont Planning Commission has denied unanimously a request for a conditional use permit to allow Western Assemblies Home to tear down four houses and to replace them with a housing unit for 30 persons.

The development would be on the east side of Berkeley Avenue between Stanford Drive and Grinnell Street.

The commission felt the area should remain residential, an environmental impact report should be prepared, and the general plan should be restudied by the city staff. On the other hand, the commission approved a conditional use permit for Pilgrim Place to erect a nursing home on property now containing the Zetterberg house scheduled for removal to the Harvey Mudd College

The commission also approved the Claremont Tennis Club's adding six tennis courts under a conditional use

A simple cement-can anchor can keep a fisher-man's rowboat from drifting in a smooth lake or stream. But large ships must use anchors made of iron or steel.

The anchors of early-day sailing ships had flukes, or "hooks," on curved arms at the end of a shank. When the anchor was dropped into the water, a stock, or crossarm, near the top of the anchor prevented it from laying flat and made sure that one of the flukes would dig into the mud and keep the ship from dragging the anchor along the bottom.

Most anchors used today are stockless anchors. The arm of the stockless anchor pivots, or turns, so that both flukes catch in the mud to hold the ship in place.

Most large ships carry two or more heavy anchors. These anchors must be raised by hauling machines called windlasses.

When a ship is under way.

When a ship is under way, the anchors are pulled tight against openings in the bow called hawsepipes.

John sparks L.A.

CINCINNATI (AP) - The Cincinnati Reds hitched their hopes to a newly acquired star, but it was Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Tommy John who stole the show Friday night.

The Dodgers edged the Reds 3-2 in the opener of a four-game series between the top two teams in the National League West. The victory gives Los Angeles a 91/2-game bulge over Cincinnati.

"It was a great game for me and a great game for the team to come in here with all the hoopla and beat Tom Seaver in his first game here," said John, who pitched out of jams in the seventh and eighth innings while going the distance.

'My wife asked me how I was going to pitch and I said 'like a guy playing with his last $5—close to the vest," John said.

Seaver, making his first appearance at a soldout Riverfront Stadium since being obtained from the New York Mets last week, continued to fare poorly in Cincinnati. The last game Seaver won in Cincinnati was in 1972.

"I was very nervous," said Seaver. "I didn't think I was going to be that nervous

Ken Griffey, who ran his hitting streak to 14 games, admitted John was effective.

"His ball was dropping pretty good," Griffey said. "When the ball got to the plate, it looked like the bottom fell out of it.

John, 8-4, gained his seventh career victory in eight decisions against Cincinnati.

Steve Garvey drove in two runs in the first-inning for Los Angeles with a single and Rick Monday singled home a run in the sixth.

Seaver, 8-4, yielded seven hits in eighth innings, walked two and struck out four. Seaver's lifetime Riverfront Stadium record now is 2-

De Jesus to defend crown

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) - Esteban de Jesus of Puerto Rico is heavily favored to defend his World Boxing Council lightweight crown against Vicente Saldivar of Los Angeles tonight in a 15-round bout at the Juan Ramon Loubriel Stadium in suburban Bayamon.

The Puerto Rican, winner of 49 of 52 bouts as a pro, has 28 knockouts. Saldivar has a 24-1 record with 15

De Jesus is favored because of his last three fights, when he easily outclassed his opponents.

De Jesus is making the third defense of the crown he won from Guts Ishimatsu of Japan in May, 1976, after failing twice previously in quest of world titles, against Roberto Duran of Panama and Antonio Cervantes of Colombia.

In his first two title defenses, de Jesus stopped Hector Medina of the Dominican Republic and Buzzsaw Yamabe of Japan.

Saldivar, a light puncher but very fast on his feet, will try and tire the hard-punching Puerto Rican in the early rounds, then go for a knockout punch or a cut in ending the bout, according to his manager Harry Kabakoff.

But de Jesus, who went 15 rounds against Cervantes and Ishimatsu, says he is ready to go the distance. But he predicts the bout will not go beyond the ninth.

'Saldivar might be fast on his feet, but he cannot hide, and when I hit he will not be able to stay on his feet,' de Jesus said when he heard of Saldivar's strategy.

The bout is scheduled to start at 10 p.m. EDT. It will not be televised live to the United States as previously announced.

The Reds only hit one ball in the air off John all game-Joe Morgan's two-run homer in the seventh.

Ken Griffey opened the seventh with a bunt single, extending his hitting streak to 14 games. Morgan followed with his 10th homer of the season into the right field seats.

George Foster and Dan Driessen singled around two infield outs, but John struck out Cesar Geronimo to end the inning Seaver won his first start in a Cincinnati uniform last Saturday in Montreal. The righthander was obtained by the Reds from the New York Mets June 15.

Dave Lopes walked opening the game and stole second. Bill Russell followed with a single, with Lopes stopping at third. Seaver retired the next two batters, but Garvey singled to left, driving in two runs.

John allowed only one Reds' runner as far as second base through six innings, scattering four singles, and was helped by four double plays.

The Dodgers scored the winning run against Seaver in the sixth when Russell singled and moved to second on Reggie Smith's walk. Ron Cey's long fly to right advanced the runners and Monday's single scored Russell.

Rangers edge Tanana in 10

By BILL LANGLEY PB Sports Editor

ANAHEIM - After all of the turmoil this week with managers, the lift at Anaheim Stadium Friday night.

But it didn't figure the Texans would get much help as they had to open a four-game weekend series against the Angels' Frank Tanana, who has been baseball's best pitcher

And Tanana did his part in holding the Rangers to four singles in pitching nine scoreless innings. Yet, Tanana's bid for his baseball-leading 12 victories fell short because his teammates couldn't score any runs either against veteran Gaylord

Rightfielder Ken Henderson broke up the scoreless duel when he slammed Tanana's first pitch over the leftfield fence with two outs in the 10th inning to give the Rangers an 1-0

"It was a change-up over the plate," said Henderson about his fourth home run of the season. "I was just looking for a good pitch to hit and he made a mistake. I don't know if Tanana is the best pitcher in baseball but certainly is the best lefthander.

It was certainly a big win for the Rangers considering their unusual

First of all, manager Frank Lucchesi was fired Wednesday because Ranger officials felt their team should be higher in the American League West.

However, new skipper Eddie Stanky lasted only one day as he shocked everybody by suddenly resigning Thursday morning because he was lonesome and homesick.

Nolan goes on disabled list

ANAHEIM (AP) - The California Angels Friday placed right-handed pitcher Gary Nolan on the 21-day disabled list retroactive to last Tues-

Nolan, 29, has been bothered by a muscle irritation in his right shoulder. He was acquired by the Angels from the Cincinnati Reds just prior to the June 15 trading deadline. In his only appearance for California, Nolan dropped a 4-2 decision at Milwaukee June 18. He allowed all four Brewers' runs and six hits in four innings.

So, the job now belongs to coach Connie Ryan on an interim basis as team official decide what to do.

Obviously, all of the uncertainty Texas Rangers certainly needed a isn't the best situation for the Ryan called a meeting before

Friday's game and told the team to just keep playing ball and forget about the front office problems. 'In my 11 years in major league baseball, I have never been more enthused about a team meeting, Henderson said. "It was just great and did everybody a lot of good.' When asked if he hopes to keep his manager's job, Ryan just said, "If I do, I do and if I don't, I don't.' 'This win sure picked up the whole team," Ryan said. "It's really something to beat Tanana on the road. Tanana (114) should have got credit for his seventh shutout of the season but he couldn't get any sup-

Until Henderson connected on his drive which just cleared the fence beyond the outstretched reach of Joe Rudi's glove, Tanana didn't even permit a Ranger as far as second

Texas' only hits through nine innings were by Bert Campaneris in the third, Toby Harrah in the fourth, Willie Horton in the seventh and Harrah again in the ninth. Tanana didn't walk anyone and struck out nine But 38-year-old Perry was just as tough, permitting only four hits and one walk while striking out 10 in his eight innings of work.

The Angels' best opportunity came in the seventh inning when Bobby Bonds hit an one-out triple on a ball which fell between centerfielder Juan Beniquez and shortstop Campaneris, who collided with Beniquez hitting the ground for a few mo-

But Perry got out of the jam by striking out Mario Guerrero on three pitches and getting Ron Jackson on a grounder.

The Halos had another chance in the eighth when a walk to Tony Solaita and a single by Jerry Remy put runners on first and second but Perry struck out Joe Rudi.

In the ninth, Don Baylor opened with a single and advanced to second on Guerrero's grounder but Jackson popped up to end that threat.

Pro hockey merger is near renegotiating the basic agreement After two days of separate and

CHICAGO (AP) - The National Hockey League ended three struggling days of meetings Friday by proposing a merger with the World Hockey Association, effective with the coming 1977-78 season

The proposal will be put forth to surviving WHA teams and is expected to be accepted. It stipulates that the WHA form a separate division of no less than six teams and play under a National Hockey League umbrella.

For the coming season, the new division would play entirely within itself with its four top teams joining the top 12 teams in the NHL to play in an interlocking Stanley Cup for-

WHA teams expected to join the NHL are Quebec, New England, Cincinnati, Edmonton, Houston and Winnipeg. Birmingham also is a pos-

Making the joint announcement of the proposed merger were NHL president-elect John Ziegler and R. Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL's Players Association.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Sprinter Clancy Edwards has been named Southern California Athlete of the Month for May it was announced to-

Edwards led the University of Southern California to the Pac-8 track championship last month with victories in both the 100-and 200meter dashes. His 20.13 victory in the 200 during the meet at UCLA was the world's best this year and the fifth fastest time ever run by an joint meetings between the owners and players, it appeared that there would be little or no chance of a Early Friday, the Board of Governors met and then called in the players' representatives. The player reps broke for a brief meeting and again joined the Board of Governors. Moments later the merger plan was

Eagleson said the move had to be made before July 1; otherwise the WHA felt it would be shut out and would have to play the 1977-78 season as a separate league

With numerous problems still to be resolved between the NHL owners and the Players' Association, the two groups scheduled another set of meetings beginning July 13 in To-The "merger," as the players call it, or "expansion" in terms of the owners, will be worked gradually. After the upcoming season, the schedules will be slowly integrated where it is hoped that in four years there will be complete realignment of the NHL. Ziegler refused to divulge what the incoming teams will have to pay for joining the NHL. "A figure of $3.2 million has been reported." said Ziegler, "But it is less than that." Such problems as what to do about the collective bargaining agreement, players' pension rights and rights held to various players by teams in the WHA and NHL are included among a long list which eventually must be solved.

Once the WHA agrees to join the NHL, the five-year collective bargaining agreement will be open for renegotiation. At least one owner, Jack Kent Cooke of the Los Angeles Kings, is against It cannot be renegotiated without unanimous approval. 'The players hope that the owners will be able to resolve the matter of unanimous agreement," said Eagleson. "We will take into consideration arising problems which we hope to resolve, many of them at the meetings in Toronto.

"The owners are not looking at this as a merger but as expansion and that brings up a lot of questions such as antitrust and labor problems," added Eagleson.

'Conditions for entering the league will be set," said Ziegler. "As to how many teams can qualify, we'll have to wait and see. All incoming teams must meet conditions of the National Hockey League constitution and each prospective member must file an application which then must be accepted."

What happens to the new, incoming money? Ziegler said it could be used "to clean up obligations within and outside the National Hockey League.

The Players' Association also will get a chunk of the money and it probably will be funneled into the pension fund.

After the legal problems are solved, there also will be the matter of statistics including goal scoring. The NHL players are worried about it because they feel the new division will be more free-wheeling when it comes to scoring.

Another sticky problem is the question of which team has the rights to what players since most of them had been drafted by both leagues.

'We'll be able to work out an arrangement," said Ziegler.

"There's a good chance it will be worked out," 'said Eagleson

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — "It was the toughest match of my life, psychologically," said Chris Evert after meeting tennis' new wonder girl, 14-year-old Tracy Austin, on Wimbledon's hallowed center court.

Don Money sets fielding mark

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Milwaukee's Don Money tied a major league record and set an American League mark for second baseman Friday night, recording 12 assists in a nine-inning game as the Brewers defeated the Seattle Mariners 7-1.

The mark was set by John Ward of Brooklyn in 1892 and tied by Junior Gilliam of Brooklyn in 1956. The old American League record of 11 was shared by many piayers. The last to do it was Dick McAuliffe of Detroit Money received a standing ovation from the crowd of 11,625 when he tied the record in the ninth inning, throwing out Ruppert Jones.

posure of a great champion to control her swirling emotions as she stepped onto the most famous court in tennis Friday and played a miniature version of herself. With 15,000 fans packed around the center court and hundreds more watching the scoreboard outside, the defending champion was engaged in long, testing rallies by the youngster from Rolling Hills, Calif. which the 6-1, 6-1 score in Miss Evert's favor did not reveal. Miss Austin was the center of attention, her teeth in schoolgirl braces and her hair tied back, as she contested the third-round women's singles match against the reigning queen of tennis. "I knew I wasn't just playing

Tracy, I was playing a lot of people, said Chris. "The crowd wanted her to win, or at least play a close match, and for the first couple of games, I felt sick to my stomach with nerves. "I remember thinking to myself, 'I wonder if she is going to be No. 1 in the world some day.' But my only real problem in the match was myself. I never felt threatened at all during the whole match."

For too long, Miss Evert has been cast as the unemotional "Ice Maiden" of tennis. Her methodical game with its reliance on ground strokes and baseline rallies makes her seem machine-like. But those close to the 22-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., say she is a warm, considerate person. And that's what showed Friday. She told Tracy how to curtsy to the Royal Box, and after the match put her arm around her, and they curtsied again. It couldn't have been easy, amidst all the ballyhoo for her teen-age rival, to face a crowded press conference, but it was there she shared her feelings about Tracy and herself.

"I think Tracy can learn from my mistakes-she has a lot of growing up to do yet and it's going to be tough," said Chris, who burst into the game in 1971 at the age of 16 and became the youngest-ever semifinalist at Forest Hills.

What are her feelings now that the first flushes of her million-dollar success are over and she has to defend her top position against newcomers?

"Most of my opponents are pretty hard, because this life style makes you that way. But I don't think I flaunt being No. 1 in the world. The only thing I don't like is the lack of privacy. I have to have my privacy or I'd go crazy. I'm pretty sensitive about things and when the press writes about my private life it hurts me sometimes," she said to a chastened and hushed press corps.

Over Foyt's actions

Foyt made an obscene gesture to the crowd when he was booed after his qualification run. He also refused to be interviewed on the public address system following qualifying, which is customary, or pose for the traditional front-row picture with Johnny Rutherford and Mario Andretti.

'All of USAC's rules apply to everyone except Mr. Foyt," Stecher said. "If they choose to run their business that way, fine. But we don't have to be a party to it."

Later Friday, Foyt met with newsmen and denied making any such gesture. "I motioned for some big, fat, sloppy guy up in the stands who was really on me to come down and say those things to my face,'

Although exact figures have never been announced for the Citicorp sponsorship, Stecher conceded the basic agreement "is around $300,000 with options for some additional races." He said the $350,000-$400,000 figure would not be inaccurate.

Stecher's decision will not affect 1977 agreements, but it scuttles 1978 plans, the third and final year of the current agreement.

Citicorp distributes its sponsorship money through all levels of the sport, including buying blocks of tickets for each national championship event, awarding from $100 to $2,500 to qualifiers for each race, and kicking in $35,000 toward the championship point fund.

Pomona struck for three runs in the fourth on a walk, three singles and a costly error in right by Paul Sokolowski. Jeff Seaman lined a single to right to score Tim Lambert, Art Avila scored when the b all skipped by

Daniels spent four months - from August to September, 1975 - on an evangelistic mission in and out of the Iron Curtain countries risking imprison-

"A Bible," said Daniels, in a Communist country is 'Subversive contraband' and you never know what will happen to you if you get caught.

And he was. It was the last load of Bibles, Testaments and religious tracts written in Russian, Hungarian and Rumanian. The 12th stop on the run was a little town in Hungary just across the border.

The religious material supplied by a rankfort based group of 'Bible Couriers' called Underground Evangelism. Its mission was to supply 'underground Christians' with material to pass along to other people, said Daniels.

But on this stop, the guards were more thorough than usual. When three New Testaments were uncovered, they knew they had been caught. The guard asked, "Are there any more Bibles?" Not knowing what to do and unable to lie he answered.

More guards came and the search continued. In addition to Bibles and 40 Testaments they uncovered concordances, commentaries, personal belongings, English Bibles and even a book mark with a cross on it. All the material was confiscated. Danield, who is multilingual, spoke to the guards in their native language, which seemed to make matters worse.

After being detained outside - it was early morning during a freezing Eastern European winter they were led to the guards' office where passport inspection took place.

"The guards," said aniels, "acted Daniels, bewildered by the audacity of our attempt." A conference took place behind closed doors to determine the fate of the two captured smugglers.'

'We are going to lock up all the Bibles, books and materials," it was announced. The men were allowed to go. They went on to make another delivery in another village.

School test criticized

HARRISBURG, Pa. AP) - A controversial test that examines students' attitudes is being revised, asking more questions about math and English and fewer about whether the students would throw rocks in a protest or sniff glue if their friends

But some parents, legislators and the American Civil Liberties Union still say the state has no business probing students' innermost feel-

The current test, given on a voluntary basis to students in the fifth, eighth and 11th grades, asks such questions as whether they would throw rocks, sniff glue, shout down an unpopular speaker or smoke marijuana. It also seeks their attitudes toward other races and religions.

Recent results have shown that positive attitudes toward school drop after the fifth grade, that 11th graders are more selfconfident than students in lower grades but less tolerant of other races, and that fifth and eighth grade students are less tolerant of other religions.

Wambaugh said he sold movie rights and a screenplay for "The Choirboys" to Lorimar Productions in 1975 with the agreement that the screenplay would not be altered. However, he said that

When Wambaugh saw the new script, he asked that his name be removed and Lorimar refused, the suit alleges.

Woman is busted for selling grass

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) -In an unusual turnaround, the state Attorney General cracked down on a woman who wasn't selling marijuana.

Carole Corbo of Port Washington, a community on Long Island, placed an advertisement in the Village Voice, a weekly newspaper, early in January, according to Atty. Gen Louis Lefkowitz.

It read: "MARIJUANA cannot be sold through the mail but 'Grass' can; Grass Homegrown Grass; First Time Ever Sold Publicly; 1/4 oz, bag $5.00!" Lefkowitz said Thursday the advertisement implied the woman was selling marijuana, when she really was offering lawn grass. He said she agreed to refrain from similar advertising in the future and also agreed to pay $100 in costs. She did not admit any violation of law, he added.

A spokesman for Lefkowitz said the Consumer Frauds and Protection Bureau got on the case on its own, without waiting for a consumer complaint. He added, however, that any dissatisfied customer who complains to the office will be reimbursed.

'We should not preach one thing and do the other," he said. "We need to bring the message out of the walls of the church to where the people are.

Bishop Kibira said he was disappointed that the current LWF assembly had not moved to establish multiracial guidelines for Lutheran churches or to force exclusively white South African churches to integrate.

South Africa's racial situation has dominated most discussions here. Bishop Manas Buhelezi, leader of the nation's black Lutherans, caused an uproar at the usually staid assembly by suggesting that the bloody Soweto riots had value by focusing attention on "the issues of liberation, justice and freedom for all.

Recognizing that these are "important and touchy questions," the new president said living near the Ugandan border had taught him an important lesson.

Le Car vs. La Competition

Americans are discovering what 11/2 million Europeans already know. When it comes to performance, economy, comfort and engineering, Le Car is in a class by itself.

About the only thing Le Car has in common with little cars is its size. Only Le Car comes with front-wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, Michelin steel-belted radials, all standard.

If only old Holmes Hall could speak . . .

(Story on pages 6-7)

Doc Peirsol

It happened in Pomona

We Pomonans moan and groan these days about how we are living in deathly fear of being victims of robberies, muggings and burglaries. We sigh for the good old days when law abiding citizens could live in a peaceful community where no one ever locked a front door or worried about being the victim of some unknown sniper. Which just goes to show you how wishful thinking can blind us to what was really going on in Pomona nearly three quarters of a century ago.

But there was one Pomonan in those days who really knew the score and who devised his own "Spotlight on Crime." You'll find his story, which presents a rather different interpretation of how earlier day Pomonans ac tually reacted to the threat of crime in this city, in the November 5, 1904 issue of The Pomona Daily Review.

'Oscar Overholtzer,' the story read, "is doing one of the most complete jobs of electrical wiring to be found in any residence in Southern California. It is the wiring of J.H. McKim's elegant new home on North Ellen street. A burglar alarm system which connects every door and window in the house is one of the features; and a switch plate is being placed at the head of Mr. McKim's bed from which he can light any room and porch about the premises.

Last week I reported on the surprise victory by the Burlington, VT. high school chess team in the national high school championships.

As Bill tells it: "We found that chess improved the academic work, especially the reading of our players. Chess has been a terrific motivation for kids to get into books. That is the biggest advantage of chess. Books become immediately useful.

Stamps in the news

Many stamp collectors who specialize in particular countries usually keep their items in homemade albums or purchase albums designed for their specialty. Minkus Publications produces 2post and 3-ring albums for more than 70 different countries - from the Inited States to Vatican City. For example, there four separate albums for Israel - Israel singles, Israel tab singles, Israel tab blocks and Israel plate blocks. The albums are available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department.

The Post Office of Great Britain is working in conjunction with educational officials in that country in the matter of Silver Jubilee first day covers and presentation packs. These anniversary stamps are being made available to school children at less than the normal public price. First day covers can be purchased by youngsters for 50 pence instead of the 601/2 pence per cover for older collectors.

Kitchen gadget for collectors

By Dorothy Hammond QUESTION: I would appreciate any information about the old kitchen gadget on the far right. We have no idea what it was used for. The one on the left is a bottle cleaner eventhough it does resemble a spatula on one end. Can you tell us the value of these items? Mrs. E.J.S.

ANSWER: Judging from the photograph, the questionable item was originally used for cleaning a lamp chimney. In shops, these sell for about $18, and bottle cleaners go for under $10.

QUESTION: I have a collection of what I am told "Dorflinger" crystal. Unfortunately, there does not appear to be much literature available on this glass house; only that it was in operation during the late 19th century. Could you possibly recommend a source of information, in addition to pattern identification and monetary value? Mrs. C.M.T.

A qualified ANSWER: appraiser could help identify the pattern evaluate your Dorflinger collection. I suggest that you contact the Appraisers Association of America, Inc., 541 Lexington Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022, for the name of an appraiser near you.

Christian Dorflinger, founder of the famous C. Dorflinger & Sons glassworks, was born March 16. 1828 at Rosteig in the Canton de Bitsche, Alsace, France. In 1852, he moved to Brooklyn to take charge of the Long Island Flint Glass Works. His goal was to become the best manufacturer of fine cut and engraved glass tableware in this country and he succeeded. He achieved international prestige at the 1876 Centen-Exhibition in nial Philadelphia when his cut and engraved Centennial - a decanter and 38 set glasses, symbolic of the national government and the 38 states then in the unwon the highest ion award.

Considered to be a man of progressive ideas, Dorflinger was constantly making improvements to products and his techniques as well as enlarging the capacity of his glass works, until it became the largest of its kind in the United States. Dorflinger died in 1915 at the age of 87. His sons carried on the business until the plant closed in 1921.

Attributing glass to Dorflinger is oftentimes difficult as the firm did not use an acid-etched trademark. Instead paper stickers were attached to each piece as a means of However, identification. when silver was used in conjunction with his cut lass, the name 'Dorflinger' was oftentimes imprinted on the metal land (AP) - If you have ever wondered how there can be such a measurement as 5,958 billion miles, you are in good company.

New techniques bring gains to 'astronom

Professional stargazers also muse over the wonders of the universe.

The figure is the distance that light travels in one year. Space is so vast that astronomers long ago gave up measuring it in earth-bound terms. They use light seconds and light vears Does space go on and on or does it stop?

"I don't know - and nor does anyone else," savs Gordon Taylor, a senior scientific officer at the Royal Greenwich Observatory here in rural Sussex.

Astronomers argue all the time over space, if it is infinite or finite, and I find both concepts equally incomprehensible," Taylor said.

"It is impossible for a human being to conceive of infinity," he added, offer-those who feel that scientists are supermen, nonchalantly juggling myriad strings of zeros.

Our galaxy contains 100,000 million stars, some so far away that their light first started out toward us when William of Normandy was hammering the Anglo-Saxon army to defeat eight miles east of Hurstmonceux, in 1066.

The Royal Observatory has eight big optical telescopes and a worldwide reputation, which has not been superseded by radio astronomy which bounces signals off the stars.

"Radio astronomy has extended the boundaries of our knowledge of space by several thousand million light years, but optical observation still has plenty to discover," Taylor said.
Years before it happened, Taylor predicted the planet Uranus would pass in front of a certain star, a passage known as an occultation. Taylor collaborated with Jim Elliott of Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., and other British, American and Australian astronomers to use this first-time event recently to measure Uranus and gain information on its atmosphere.

Optical lenses larger than 30 inches across tend to absorb light and sag under their own weight, so today's big telescopes 'see" by collecting light from the stars in huge, mirrorlike reflectors. The Royal Observatory has Britain's largest reflector, 98.2-inch model in a telescope weighing 92 tons. It is named after Isaac Newton, who worked out his theory of gravitation three centuries ago.

The world's largest telescope, with 236.2-inch reflector, is on a mountain in the Soviet Caucasus spend much time looking through telescopes - they study photographs taken with them," explained Dr. David Thomas, assistant director at Hurstmonceux.

The Observatory developed an electronographic camera 10 times more sensitive to light than ordinary photography and with the capacity to scan vast areas of sky over long periods. This gives the possibility of picking up flashes of light from space that could be clues to yet unknown energy sources. The camera trebles the lightgathering power of a 100inch reflector.

Professor F. Graham Smith, director of the Observatory, said there was a chance this camera eventually might photograph the mysterious Vela pulsar, first detected by a radio telescope of Sydney University in Australia.

Vela, several thousands of light years from earth, is five times fainter than anything previously detected optically.

Norman Walker, a specialist in X-ray sources from space, said that pulsars and quasars had only been discovered in the last 15 years. They are quasistellar objects and the sources of enormous energy. Pulsars give out radio waves in short bursts. Quasars also emit radio waves but more steadily

The Royal Observatory, founded by King Charles II in 1675, moved here from Greenwich in 1948 to escape the smoke and lights of London. The Greenwich building is now a museum.

A permanent exhibition on astronomy recently opened at Hurstmonceux, largely in response to public demand. But visitors will not be able to use the telescopes

White collar crime force

PHILADELPHIA (AP) The FBI, concerned about the potential for an increase in sophisticated white-collar crime through the use of computers and modern technology, is training agents to fight "the crime of the future."

Six months ago four agents with backgrounds in computers or accounting were sent to a four-week course set up by the FBI at the Quantico Marine Base, Va. The agents form the nucleus of the new computer fraud section in the local FBI office.

Computers are everywhere. And unlike a bank robbery, computer fraud could be going on anywhere and we don't know it unless it's observed," said Mike Boyle, agent in charge of the new fraud section.

"The general public and law enforcement officials don't have any idea what's going on," he said in an interview.

Last Thursday, federal indictments were returned against two suburban Philadelphia computer programming managers for Sperry-Univac, a result of the unit's investigation and newly gained understanding.

The programers, the indictments alleged, used SperryUnivac's computers to run a music-arranging business.

Although agents could get direct evidence of the scheme by having the computer print out the clandestine instructions given to the machines, there is no federal statute covering theft of computer time. So prosecutors charged the men with mail fraud for advertising services provided by their alleged theft.

The men had developed a computer program to turn sophisticated out orchestral arrangements and also had the Sperry machines do their billing and record-keeping.

"Agents were able to talk to the people at Sperry without an interpreter; a year ago, we would have said 'what?''' Boyle said.

Mandalay: city-heart of Burma's officially 'invisible' black market

MANDALAY, Burma (AP) - This languid, heatsoaked city, home to 50,000 Buddhist monks and 3,500 pony-pulled taxis, may not as Burmese kings once claimed - the center of the universe.

But it is unmistakably the heart of Burma's black market, which pumps everything from stereos to contraceptives into the otherwise moribund economy of the Socialist-style rule of Gen. Ne Win.

Come any evening at 5 o'clock to Mandalay's teeming night market.

The police will obligingly cordon off an L-shape of streets from traffic while hundreds of entrepreneurs, officially invisible, will conjure up a forest of makeshift stalls. Within an hour, smuggled goods from a dozen countries, simply non-existent in Burma's government-run "people's stores," make their appearance.

A foreign browser is quickly approached by a smiling young man who in a few breaths asks if you'd like to sell him Scotch whisky, American cigarettes or the shirt off your back. He offers local kyat for dollars at three times the official rate and politely inquires about the make of your wrist watch. The

Two schools integrated

LOS ANGELES (AP) -The Board of Education has approved the voluntary integration predominantly white Canfield Avenue School and predominantly black Crescent Heights Boulevard School.

The board said Thursday that pairing the two West Side schools, located less than a mile apart, is the first effort under the district's voluntary integration plan official rate is 7 to 6.

This is, in the words of one Western diplolmat, Burma's "real economy" and accounts for an estimated 65 per cent of all transactions. The "phony economy," he says, is what taxes are collected on, official plans made and reports for domestic and international consumption compiled in defiance of most known economic practice.

The black market is, naturally a curse on the government coffers. But it's a must for consumers facing severe curbs on imports, inefficiency and admitted corruption of state socialism and domestic production which often falls below pre-World War II levels.

Mandalay, although conveniently equidistant from the borders of five countries, is in other respects a somewhat incongruous backdrop for the hub of this shadow economy

Spread out beneath the mountains along the Irrawaddy River, which the English poet Rudyard Kipling's verses dubbed "The Road to Mandalay," the country's second largest city is regarded as the first in Burmese sentiment and tradition.

Buddhist monks by the thousands learn scriptures and chants in the monasteries and lovely temples. Its citizens speak the most refined and polite Burmese. Traditional craftsmen fashion teak statues, brass and silverware and the gold leaf that finds its way by the millions of dollars worth to the glittering pagoda tops in a country whose per capita annual income in the world is estimated at only $80 to $100. The U.S. annual per capita income was $6,441 in 1976.

Not many foreigners come here.

Mandalay is not for the jetage tourist fussy about hot showers, bacteriaproof edibles and an occasional furry animal scurrying about a hotel room.

The pace of the city is rarely faster than that of the pony carts or the bicycle-with-sidecar taxis, and it slackens during the noonday hours when the heat is at its worst.

Dry and parched for much of the year and threatened by what some say is deteriorating sanitation. Mandalay fights periodic bouts with cholera, hepatitis, dysentery and even bubonic plague.

The night market lasts for four hours.

A clandestine cycle of exchange with Thailand accounts for most of the goods, which range from Japanese-made digital watches to slippers and textiles especially tailored for the Burmese black market by Thai factories along the frontier. With Burmese currency worthless outside the country, these goods are paid for through what amounts to a wholesale rape of the country's resources.

Jade, rubies, antique Buddha statues, parrots, tin, tungsten and gold melted down from jewelry into handily concealed bars are taken out. Teak logs are floated across river boundaries and cattle are herded out. Opium refined along the border into heroin - is a prime instrument of exchange.

The trade cycle with Thailand may take up to two months, the goods changing hands a dozen times and carried by cars, trucks, mule caravans and couriers on foot. Antigovernment rebel groups along the rugged frontier often engage directly in the smuggling or demand a tax on goods passing through their territory. This tax is often used to purchase arms to fight the Rangoon government. Armed escort service and elephant rides are sometimes provided by the rebels.

Burmese farmers sell a portion of their crops to black marketeers at higher black market, will wait in long lines to obtain cheaper government-sold items and resell them illegally. Illegal operators and official sources say there has been some constriction of the black market in recent months. There has also been greater pressure on the opium and heroin trade

A horseshoe-shaped balcony adds capacity to the former college chapel.

If only old Holmes Hall could speak . . .

Brightly colored signs make the corridors colorful.

"It marked a new epoch in the life of the college," wrote Frank P. Brackett, emeritus professor of astronomy at Pomona College. Student Life, the college newspaper, observed, "Every branch of the college will take on new dignity and will feel new impetus, and we shall have as a result increased standing with men and in-stitutions abroad." The faculty and undergraduate enthusiasm was evoked by the dedication of the second building on campus,

Cyrus W. Holmes Jr. Hall. Now in its 85th year of use, the handsome Victorian structure was once the most active and vital center on campus, the focus of college life. Today Holmes Hall is occupied by the theater arts department, and while it still swings, it is no longer the academic, religious and social center it once was.

In 1892 all of the infant Pomona College located in Sumner Hall, a former hotel that had been given to the college when an anticipated land boom failed to develop. The rapidly growing student body was soon too big for Sumner, and a building was sought. Hearing of the need of the new college, Mrs. Cyrus W Holmes Jr. and her daughter, Esther, contributed money for a hall to be named for Mrs. Holmes late husband. Holmes Hall was dedicated in 1893.

The two-story wooden structure, with its highceilinged corridors and tall windows, was topped by a bell tower that was to play an important part in the life of the tiny community of Claremont as well as that of the college. The bell rang at 6:30 each morning to awaken slumbering students and faculty members; it tolled for the compulsory daily chapel, and it rang eurfew at 10 p.m. It was also the town bell. It rang when there was a fire or an accident; it rang for Town Hall, and it rang for church, which in the early days met in the 300-seat chapel of Holmes.

The small auditorium was the center of college activities for many years. Professors and students streamed in to daily chapel, assemblies, Sunday church service, senior orations, plays, concerts, lectures and pep rallies for the teams. The hall, as seen from theater, has everything Shakespeare to Gilbert & Sullivan to Japanese kabuki plays, for which a special ramp was always constructed from the entrance to the stage. Noted actors, singers and musical groups have performed there. Richard Chamberlain launched his illustrious stage and television career on the creaky boards of the Holmes Hall stage. The hall has served as a podium for leading political figures, philosophers, religious leaders and other national and international celebrities

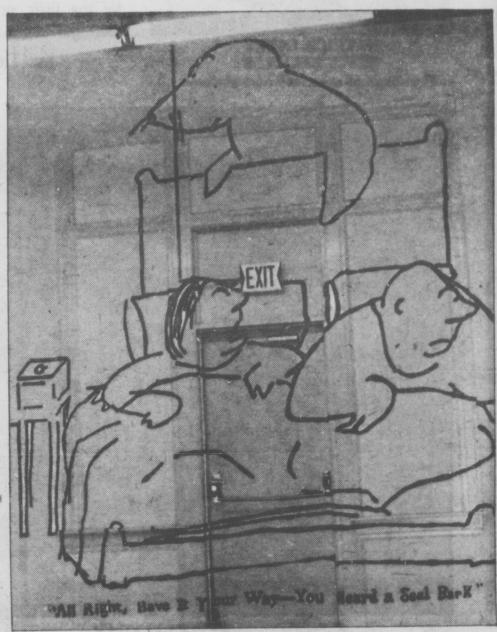

The new hall also housed classrooms, offices, laboratories, a reading room and a "society room." Over the years most of the college departments have headquarters in Holmes art, music, chemistry, biology, physics, astronomy, theater, economics, mathematics, English - even the college library was located there. As other buildings were constructed, the various departments moved to them, leaving the drama department the chief occupant today. The building was enlarged in 1904 and rebuilt in 1916.

Although it is just another college building today, Holmes Hall was a mighty addition to the struggling young college 85 years ago. In "The Story of Pomona College," Charles Burt Sumner wrote, "Pomona College could not have been what it is, quite possibly could not have continued to exist, without Holmes Hall."

The Holmes Hall stage has been host to everything from Shakespeare to Gilbert & Sullivan.

Story and photos by Joseph H. Firman PB staff writer

A James Thurber classic is reproduced by film instructor Bob Wilson at one end of a Holmes Hall corridor.

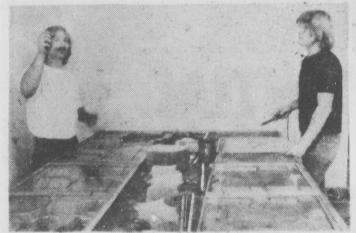

ON THE COVER

Once the principal building on the campus of tiny Pomona College, Holmes Hall has served in a variety of capacities in its 85 years. At present the venerable structure is occupied by the college theater arts department. In the top photo, drama major Tom Sawyer lines up a battery of theaterical spotlights.

Kabuki performers have been popular attractions of Holmes Hall in the past.

'California sprawl' drawing fire from state planners

A California phenomenon almost as famous as the state's freeways and smog — its suburban sprawl — is drawing fire from state

In a report one official calls a "blueprint for sav-ing California cities," they are recommending controls on suburban-oriented building that has caused the state's metropolitan areas to mushroom since World War II.

The report is the most recent criticism of urban spawl, which has been a prime target of environmentalists who see suburbs posing an increasing threat to California's prime agricultural land.

Critics also say that it's wasteful to provide services for suburbs, which in California often creep out over deserts and mountain areas far from the center of cities.

Prepared by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s Office of Planning and Research, the draft "Urban Development Strategy' contends that continued population growth is inevitable in the Golden State.

But it says much can be done to save open space and farm lands and avoid the severe decay that has hit some older Eastern cities

"This is a managed growth report, not a no-growth report," said Bill Press, OPR's director. We do not say stop it, but better manage it.

The plan cites estimates that the state's 21 million population will jump by four million to eight million by the year 2000, with much of that growth in urban areas.

Without controls, the San Francisco Bay urban area is expected to be three times as big in 1990 as it was in 1970. During the same period, the size of the Los Angeles metropolitan area is expected to double.

Both urban areas were five times as big in 1970 as they were in 1945.

In an attempt to slow that expansion, the plan recommends three priorities: Maintaining existing neighborhoods, developing vacant urban land and then developing land immediately adjacent to urban areas.

"I was so happy that I took a driving trip all the priorities, the plan recommends 46 steps, about half of which require legislative action. The others could be done with an order from the governor or a department head, Press said

Probably the most important of those is one that would require cities and counties to direct construction to vacant land within urban areas and contiguous to it in an effort to a void "leap-frog development."

Local government can do that, Press said, "just by the way they exercise their building permits and secondly by which areas they are willing to provide and sewer hookups."

Press says he thinks enforcement of such a law should be left to citizens and environmental groups instead of requiring the state to monitor local actions

"I don't see the role of the state as being the policeman for every local planning decision,' said. He added that cities and counties that did not follow the law would be "open season for citizen or environmental groups who want to take them to

Other recommendations include:

-Giving top priority to transportation needs in already urbanized areas.

-Allowing a five-year moratorium on property tax increases for housing rehabilitation.

-Requiring cities, counties and special districts to put greater emphasis on maintenance and rehabilitation of their facilities

-Boosting taxes on profits made from the quick resale of housing, a step designed to discourage speculation which many officials blame for much of the sharp increase in housing prices.

-Encouraging industry to develop in designated areas and studying the possibility of pooling part of the property tax revenues from such new development among surrounding local governments.

Such industry centers could also help slow urban spawl by discouraging industry from joining the flight to suburbs along with urban workers, Press said.

The plan, which could be revised after a series of public hearings, is almost certain to run into criticism, possibly from both environmentalists and developers

A Sierra Club representative on an advisory commission that helped draft the plan praised parts of it but criticized others as too weak

A Chamber of Commerce lobbyist said his reaction to the plan was "cautious," although he said he saw problems with

The plan could also face criticism from Brown, who has sometimes expressed skepticism about government land-use planning ef-

Handicapped needs seen

Fujimori has no legs, but he has taught about 5,000 handicapped persons how to drive

"It's the only answer to the transportation problems of the handicapped. In order to have a job, we must first have a license," said the 61-yearold Fujimori, who owns a driving school for the physically disabled.

Increasing demands are being heard that Japan's 1.5 million handicapped not be denied jobs or the means of transportation.

Some 100 people in wheelchairs, members of a cerebral palsy patients' association, recently demonstrated at a Tokyo bus terminal because they were not permitted to use the buses freely

Bus officials said people in wheelchairs could ride the buses only if they were accompanied by an assistant and if they folded up the wheelchairs on boarding the bus. Sudden stops make it too dangerous otherwise, they said.

The handicapped refused, the bus driver ordered everyone off the bus and throughout the daylong protest, 46 buses halted service. The government has since urged public and private transportation companies to study plans to remodel buses to accommodate wheelchairs.

"Japan is in many ways barbarous and uncivilized nation," said Taketoshi Kuroki, vice president of the Japanese Physically Handicapped Federation. "This is a country of healthy people. All the train and subway stations have steep stairs, so that people confined to wheelchairs, even if they find work, can't get

Last year the labor law was revised, requiring companies with more than 300 employes to hire handicapped persons as 1.5 per cent of the total, or pay a fine of about $100 monthly for each handicapped person not employed.

For those with driving licenses, the government has a special low-interest loan toward the purchase of an automobile.

The Tokyo metropolitan buses issue free passes to all handicapped persons and people assisting a handicapped person pay half the fare. The subways have undertaken a "silver seat" campaign, following the lead of some national railway lines. The first and last cars on every train have seats marked for the elderly or handicapped.

"We are doing what we can, but there still remains much to be done," said Tadao Kanase of the Ministry of Health and Welfare.

"It's hard because the problems are so different for the different kinds of handicaps. We have made slopes from the curb to the street for wheelchairs, but then this is dangerous for blind persons.

When Fujimori, as a novice driver newly arrived in Tokyo from the country, lost his legs in an automobile accident, driver's licenses were not permitted for those so handicapped. The law was

Psychic's predictions on and off target

R.C. "Doc" Anderson, the psychic who claims to have predicted the end of World War II, says the United States will be at war again within 18 months.

On the other hand, he once predicted humans would visit Venus by 1968 and that George Wallce would be president.

"Mainland China will try to take over Formosa and when they do, we're going to be into it up to our necks," says Anderson.
"Russia wants us for an ally and China wants us for an ally, but all hell will break loose first.

"We'll be at war within 18 months," he adds. "This war I'm talking about will be of short duration against China.'

Anderson is a former strongman, circus bullfighter and boxer who says he was born with a caul over his head, an ancient symbol of a seer.

Now a puffy man in his 70s, he makes his predictions from a gaudy throne in a white frame office at the foot of Lookout Mountain in Tennessee, just across the state line from Walls of the office are lined with autographed photos of the great and notso-great, but veteran newsmen recall Hollywood stars flying into Chattanooga to discuss their careers with Anderson.

The psychic's main claim to fame lies in an affidavit signed by the late E. P. Hall, editor of the Walker County, Ga., Messenger, in July 1956.

Doe R.C. Anderson predicted that the war with Germany would come to an end on the 6th or 7th of May, 1945, and this was paper," said the affidavit.

It also says be predicted
President Roosevelt's death to the day.

In May 1945, Doc Anderson predicted that something would happen about Aug. 8, 1945, that would change the course of the war," the affidavit says. (The atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima Aug. 6.)

"At the same time, he predicted that the war with Japan would come to an end on or about Aug. 18, 1945." (Japan surrendered Aug. 14.)

E.P. Hall and current editor of the paper, says he can find no mention of the predictions in back issues of the paper, but that he thinks the affidavit is authentic

"I recall my father telling me about the episode, so there's some truth to it." he says.

At the same time, however, Anderson made some errors.

"I predict that by 1968 interplanetary travel will become an accomplished fact, that we will have a manned station on the moon, and that we will have accomplished space travel to Mars and Venus, with the resultant communication between the peoples of this Earth and those planets," he said in a signed statement, notarized Dec. 25, 1944.

"I predict that a cure for cancer will be found by 1960 and that the life span of man will be increased to over 100," he said in the same statement.

And last year, he said Alabama Gov. George Wallace would be presi-

'Ancient' Arabic creates problems in the present

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) The Arabic language is at once the beauty and the bane of the modern Arab world.

Its lush poetry and flighty rhetoric endow 120 million persons across the Middle East and North Africa with a rich heritage. But it also straps them to a mode of expression more attuned to camel caravans than space vessels.

Consider the case of that most modern of foods, the

those who insist on the proper expression, defined by Cairo's authoritative Philology Institute, have to struggle with "an upper slice and a lower slice with between them something fresh

This kind of inflexibility has made it difficult to adapt Arabic to modern developments. As a result, Arabic speakers find it impossible to keep abreast of progress in technology, medicine and natural sciences without learning English, French or Rus-

Also contributing is lack of precision. In popular speech, for example, the present and the future are one and the same. A Lebanese who tells you boukra (tomorrow) actually means tomorrow or within the next few days.

Similarly, there is no way to say "too much." To express the idea, Arabic speakers have to repeat themselves, saying "much, much.

Repetition and verbosity are part of the language, even good form. A prominent Lebanese Moslem leader once answered a newsman's question with a 15-minute speech that a Lebanese reporter translated for his foreign colleagues: as "no comment

In addition, popular speech varies enormously from country to country. To say chicken in Egypt, you say farakh. In Lebanon you say dijaj. In Iraq you say farouj. The word for have breakfast in Lebanon means to clear your mind in Egypt.

dard across the Arab world, however, since it all stems from the Koran, the Moslem holy book, and cannot be changed without endangering the sacred word.

But in written and spoken Arabic, perhaps the biggest handicap is a tendency of Arabic speakers to confuse verb with deed - the impression that saying it is the same as doing it.

Moammar Khadafy, the Libyan leader, recently underlined this trait by changing the name of his country to the Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, and insisting that foreigners refer to it that way.

Singapore finds way to cut downtown traffic

NEW (rear) MEETS OLD IN SINGAPORE

SINGAPORE (AP) Through a series of stiff measures, the government of this tiny, crowded island nation has done what the U.S. government is trying to get American cities to do - drastically reduce the number of automobile commuters to cut downtown traffic congestion.

The Area Licensing Scheme (ALS) introduced two years ago includes an entrance fee - $1.60 a day or $32 a month - for motorists who drive into the downtown area with fewer than four persons in the car during the 7:30-10:15 morning rush hour.

Road taxes and car registration fees also have been increased.

Officials say the number of cars entering the 2.5square-mile business district has been cut from 43,000 a day to 11,000. But the cure has had side effects unwelcome to some.

New car sales dropped from 21,000 the year before the law went into effect to 7,000 the year after. Downtown office rents dropped 30 to 40 per cent while office rentals increased in buildings just outside the restricted zone.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has ordered some major American cities York and Washington, D.C., in particular — to reduce the number of automobiles in downtown areas to help eliminate air pollution.

New York is resisting federal orders to ban parking from midtown to lower Manhattan. Mayor Abraham Beame claims the ban will mean "economic devastation" for the city.

A commuter parking ban has been ordered for Washington, D.C.

When Singapore's ALS went into effect, thousands left cars in garages and took the bus. The number of riders jumped to 1.9 million a day in June 1975, an increase of 200,000 a Trucks, buses, taxis and private cars carrying four or more persons are exempt from the fee. Thousands of car pools were registered.

Experts from the United States, Japan, the United Nations and the World Bank have come to Singapore to pick up pointers.

Lai Weng Cheong, the registrar of vehicles, told them private cars were to blame for traffic jams.

"We cannot afford to allow the increasing road congestion and traffic snarls to paralyze our economic and business vitality," he said in an interview

The goal is "a gradual reduction in the increase in the number of cars until it reaches a constant 2 per cent per annum by 1992,' Lai said.

The entrance fee originally was $1.20 a day or $24 a month. When that didn't cut traffic enough, it was raised a third.

Daily permits, which must be stuck to the upper left corner of the windshield, are sold at roadside booths outside the business district. The police check them at 22 entry points.

Violators face $20 fines The traffic police say they ticket about 2,000 drivers a month for entering the zone without permits - by going the wrong way down one-way side streets. About $748,000 in fines was collected in the first year and a half.

There is no restriction on the evening rush hour, but this is not ruled out for the future.

Once inside the zone, motorists with permits are free to drive about or leave the area and return. Residents within the zone are affected only if they leave it and drive back during the restricted hours.

Motorists also were hit by increased road taxes.

The levy on a private car with an engine larger than 3,000 cubic centimeters is $1,000 a year. Cars of business firms are charged double. For cars 10 years or older add another 10 per cent. For those 15 years or older it's 50 per cent more.

There is also an import duty of 45 per cent on cars, and the registration fee for new cars is 10 per cent of the value.

Squeaky, Sara Jane to maximum security

(AP) - Unbreakable windows, steel bars and a sharp-tipped 14-foot-high fence are being installed at the red brick federal women's prison in this tiny town in the West Virginia hills.

When renovations are completed, the 50-year-old minimum security jail will contain the first and only security maximum women's facility in the federal prison system.

And some of the nation's most infamous female convicts, including would-be presidential assassins Lynette "Squeaky" me and Sara Jane Moore, will be transferred here during the next few months.

> There are no gun towers and no moats surrounding the 91-acre grounds, only an eight-foot-high barbed wire fence

The nearest city to Alderson, population 1,278, is Lewisburg — 18 miles away near the Virginia border of these "Most (prisoners) are city girls, says Warden Carson Markley. "Some have even been convinced (not to escape) by stories that farmers will shoot them or bears roam wild in the woods.

But officials are taking no chances with the 15 to 20 new prisoners coming in. Work crews now are putting the finishing touches on Davis Hall, the twostory, Georgian-style building that will be the maximum security block.

Windows of unbreakable plastic are being installed, steel bars are being placed in doorways and hallways and a fence topped with razor-sharp wire is being erected.

'It will be a penitentiary within this federal correctional institution, Markley said.

Several of the prison's 620 women inmates are serving life sentences for murder, but the jail has always been a minimum security facility.

Although there have been famous inmates in the past - Tokyo Rose spent vears here as did Machine Gun Kelly's wife and mother - the new prisoners have been convicted of different types of crimes, such as trying to kill the president.

"These kinds of people you do not want to escape," said Markley. "They need the closer security.'

The maximum security prisoners will be separated from women in the minimum security areas of the prison.

Seven youngsters served by the Pomona Valley Regional Center of the Crippled Children's Society, are participating in a two-week summer camping program.

Starting Monday, two camps owned and operated by the society offer vacations to over 600 disabled children and young adults during two-week sessions in the summer.

Camping sessions are at Camp Joan Mier on the coastline above Malibu or Camp Paivika in the San Bernardino Mountains near Crestline. The program is free to the children.

The staff of each camp includes a registered nurse, and a doctor is on call at all times.

Crutches, braces and wheelchairs are of little hindrance to the youths as they participate in a full program of outdoor sports, swimming, horseback riding, hiking, creative arts and crafts, musical programs and talent contests.

Attending from the valley during the first session are Betty Mikesell, 10, and Ignacio Orozco, 8, Hacienda Heights; Patricia Kennedy, 9, Paul Losier, 9, and Phung Nguyen, 10, La Verne; and Jo Agee, 9, and Andrew Perez, 11, Pomona.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) —
"Airport '77" isn't exactly knocking the public dead, but it does have its moments. And one group of those moments involves a handsome actor who seems to be intriguing the feminine movie-goers in a big way.

His name is Gil Gerard. In "Airport '77," he plays

GIL GERARD

Lee Grant's boy friend. It's not a big part, but it does give Gil Gerard a chance to be noticed. And he's making the most of that chance.

There are other places he's being noticed in these days, too. He made a pilot for NBC called The Busters, in which he appears opposite Yvette Mimieux, that the network brass is talking about.

And he made a movie, a low budget thing he and two partners put together themselves. It's called "Hootch," and it, too, is attracting some attention.

Mostly it's Gerard the public likes. Maybe it's because he's a very likable person. Even off camera, which is rather unusual for struggling actors these days.

Gerard's background is unique, too. He didn't start out to be an actor. In fact, he was doing fine in a totally different profession for some time.

He's from Little Rock, Ark., where he grew up and did the right things and went on to college — Arkansas State Teachers — and did the right things there, too. Except for one wrong thing — he didn't graduate.

But that didn't stop him. He went out and got a job and became very successful. He had the country club membership and the big car and he headed up a division of 45 men. The only trouble was that his profession was as a chemist, and everybody assumed he had a college degree.

He was even on an advisory committee, reporting to the governor of Arkansas on the state of the chemical industry. But, in 1969, he gave it all up.

"There were two reasons for that," Gerard says. "In the first place, I had told everyone I had a college degree, but I didn't. And I always had the feeling that I was looking over my shoulder.

"And, in the second place, I always had a vague feeling that I wanted something more out of life. Only thing was, I wasn't sure what else I wanted to do.

"I considered many things, things I knew I could succeed at. I always had confidence in my own ability. But I decided to try acting. I'd enjoyed it in high school. I wasn't sure if I could do it or not, but I decided I'd give it a try."

He went to New York, burning his Arkansas bridges behind him. He drove a cab while he studied.

"I gave myself ten years to succeed," he says. "And I think I'm almost there and it's only eight years."

Gun show slated at Center

Don Bullock's Gun Show will be held at the Great Western Exhibit Center in Commerce July 16 and 17.

Bullock is an avid collector of many years standing. As an explorer in his youth, he penetrated deep into the Mexican and Peruvian jungles. He is a stickler about the type and quality of the weapons and other military memorabilia he permits to be displayed at his show.

Exhibits range from firearms in use two and three hundred years ago, daggers, knives Revolutionary and Civil War uniforms and equipment, six-shooters, carbines and the first repeating rifles, which were carried by settlers and lawmen in conquering the West. Experienced gunsmiths will be in attendance at the show and free appraisals will be given.

The hours are 9 to 5 p.m. on both days. General admission is $1.50 for adults and for children under 12, 75 cents.

BILLY DEE WILLIAMS

Film to star black flyers

LOS ANGELES (AP) —
"I've heard that black audiences didn't go to airwar movies because they found nothing to identify with," observes Billy Dee Williams. "Now they can."

Or at least they will next year with the release of "COM-TAC 393," the film that Williams is starting next month. The story is fictional, but the background is real: The participation by black pilots in the European theater of World War II.

Little has been written about the black pilots. Yet they amassed a record of 136 enemy aircraft shot down, 273 destroyed on the ground, and a total of 1,578 combat missions. They had other battles amid the segregated society of the 1940s, and that's part of the story of "COM-TAC 303" as well.

"Most of the pilots started their training at Tuskegee Institute, and Howard University had a program, too," said actor Williams. "Mrs. (Franklin D.) Roosevelt was apparently very influential in getting the Air Force to use black pilots."

Integration did not come easy, and "COM-TAC 303" dramatizes how the black squadron moves into an Italian base already occupied by a white outfit. The conflict is symbolized by Brig. Gen. Kinnett (Chad Everett) vs. Col. Turk Boston (Billy Dee Williams). Henry Fonda will play the commanding general who tries to make peace between the war-

The script was written by Air Force veteran James Doherty and William D. Gordon, who also serve as producers for the Pinnacle Productions film, to be directed by Robert Totten ("The Red Pony").

The achievements of the black pilots were unknown to Billy Dee Williams at the time, since he was an 8-year-old making his performing debut in a Broadway musical, "The Firebrand of Venice," with music by Kurt Weill. He later learned about the black squadron by reading Ebony magazine.

"I was impressed," the actor admitted. "Here were a bunch of men who were up against the same kinds of obstacles that blacks faced in the 1960s. They were called names, they were humiliated, yet they tried to achieve."
